Ministry:

The gospel doesn't change, but a culture's communication styles do. College students around the world have shifted in the way they receive and process information, including the most important information they will ever hear; the Gospel.

Rachael and I work in the Mid-Atlantic Regional Campus Office to help produce and maintain print, web and video pieces that will clearly communicate the good news to college students in a way that is compelling, attractive and culturally relevant. We serve and supply all our staff reaching out to young men and women at colleges and universities in 6 states (PA, VA, WV, NJ, DE, MD) and with our partnership countries worldwide.

We interact directly with students at various times throughout the year, especially in the summers, helping them apply the gospel's power to their lives.
